Sole Survivors of an Armenian Village.

RUSSIAN GUARDS KILL KURDS.

Minister Bayard Calls at British Foreign Office—Turkish Legation at Washington Receives a Dispatch From the Sublime Porte—Lays All the Blame Upon the Armenians.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A dispatch from Odessa says that it is stated from Kars, which is located on the Arpa-Chai river, 100 miles northwest of Erzerum, that the Russian frontier guards have killed or captured numerous Kurds who have been engaged in pursuing Armenians trying to escape. Three Americans, who have just arrived at Kars, state that they are the sole survivors of an Armenian village which numbered 1,000 inhabitants before the massacres.

The Chronicle expresses the opinion that the presence of the United States ambassador at the foreign office yesterday indicates a desire on the part of the United States government to join in the European concert for the purpose of aiding in the suppression of the present Armenian difficulty and assisting in the restoration of peace in the Turkish empire.

The Sultan Appears to Be Alive.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Turkish legation received from the sublime porte the following telegram under yesterday's date:

"A band of agitators formed by the Armenian parson of the village of Touzhatch (this parson had been condemned to hard labor for life, but pardoned recently) attacked and plundered the Musselman village of Adjipous. The same parson was the cause of the disorders at Beiglikdji and other villages.

"The Armenian agitator, Hamazaspa, wounded another Armenian called Kevork in one of the streets of Bitlis for the reason that the latter tried to convince his brother-in-law not to attack the mosques, and not to commit other depredations.

"The rioters of Gumuch Hadjik having murdered Arif Effendi, member of the council of administration, and having wounded one soldier, an affray occurred. The authorities took the necessary measures for the preservation of order

Protestant Writes a Letter.

"The authorities of Mardin seized a subversive letter written by a Protestant professor of the city named Khochabraham. In that letter the professor was trying to convince both Kurds and Christians that a so-called Armenian principality was going to be established.

"Notwithstanding the advices and assurances of the local authorities given to the principal Armenians and ecclesiastics of Marash, the rioters continue to keep closed their shops. They also killed one Musulman, fired from their houses on the troops and the gendarmes and on peaceful inhabitants. They also set fire at different parts of the city. The authorities, however, succeeded in mastering the fire and restoring order."

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.

French Marines In Irons For Injuring a Police Officer.

BANGKOK, Siam, Nov. 21.—Nine sailors belonging to the French gunboat Vipere paraded the town, assaulted several people and stole liquor from various stores Finally they accosted a police constable attached to the British legation, who, after declaring himself to be a police officer, was attacked and his skull fractured by the disorderly sailors. The latter are now in irons.

Baltimore's New Mayor.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Alcaeus Hooper, the first Republican mayor of Baltimore for 30 years, was inaugurated yesterday.

WRECKED TROUSERS

The Indirect Means of Bringing About a Divorce.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A rent in the bicycle trousers of William Wallace was the indirect means of bringing out a decree of divorce yesterday. Last summer Wallace and his friend, Benjamin Fisher, were scorching along the street, when Wallace fell off and wrecked his trousers so badly that he scorched hotter than ever to get out of the way of the police. He went to his friend James Hull and applied for the loan of a pair of bicycle trousers. Hull accommodated him and soon Wallace and Fisher went scorching once more. Wallace felt something bulky in the pocket of the Hull trousers and on investigation found it to be a letter from Fisher's wife to the owner of the trousers. Then more scorching was in order while the husband sought Hull and satisfaction. He failed to find the man and went to his wife. She is a truthful woman and Fisher began proceedings for a divorce, which was granted him yesterday. Mrs. Fisher is in Atlanta, and her husband still has possession of the fatal trousers.

TEXAS TRAGEDY.

One Man Dead and Two Dying as the Result of the Shooting.

TERRELL, Tex., Nov. 21. — S. M. Joyce, proprietor of a saloon in this city, fired four shots at J. W Ogles on horseback last night, one of the shots striking Seaborn Huckaby in the neck, breaking it and causing almost instant death. A second shot struck Buck Scott in the shoulder, ranging downward and coming out of his back. Huckaby and Scott, members of the Green Zouaves, were drilling in the street and happened to be in range of the stray balls. Ogles was found nearly an hour later in a branch street about a block and a half from the scene of the shooting, dying from a pistol shot which had entered his side and came out at his neck.

Joyce was arrested and immediately hurried from the city by Marshal Keller. Bert Hunt, the negro porter in Joyce's saloon, is also under arrest, and a pistol was found on his person when arrested. Indignation runs high here, and further particulars can not be learned. This is the bloodiest tragedy ever committed in this city.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Grand Master Workman Sovereign Resigns and Is Re-elected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The proceedings of the Knights of Labor general assembly took rather a sensational turn yesterday afternoon, growing out of some very harsh criticisms passed upon various local assemblies by the general officers. In the afternoon in executive session assembly 49 of New York retaliated with charges of general mismanagement against Grand Master Workman Sovereign, whereupon the latter resigned. But the great majority of the delegates sided with Sovereign, and after a very heated debate he was triumphantly re-elected. His majority was largely in excess of the requisite two-thirds.

Today the assembly will act upon a proposition to enforce a general boycott against the Lorillard Tobacco company.

COAL MINING CONTRACT.

Conference Between Operators and Miners Set For Next Week.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 21.—It is learned from W. P. DeArmit, president of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, that he has made a contract with his miners for one year from Nov. 6, whereby he agrees to pay them 59 cents per ton. This is an increase of 9 cents per ton, but still falls short of the present rate.

The conference between operators and miners, and in order to discuss Mr. DeArmit's latest move the miners have called a convention for Monday. General confusion in the coal trade is expected to follow the conference.

KILLED BY A SHERIFF.

Notorious Outlaw Who Long Defied the Authorities.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 21.—Frank Huffman, the notorious outlaw who has long defied the authorities, was killed by Sheriff Moore of Hickory county 50 miles northwest of here. Huffman was leader of the Otterville train robbery on the Missouri Pacific railroad and broke jail in Howard county eight months ago. Since then he has been hiding in the hills of Hickory and Cedar counties.

A GIGANTIC TRUST

And Is In Restraint of Trade and Commerce.

THIS IS CHANDLER'S OPINION

Of the Recently Organized Joint Traffic Association — No Trust Can Be Suppressed If This Crime Goes Unpunished. The Law Forbids All Pooling Agreements—Urges Indictments.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Speaking of the agreement signed in New York Tuesday by the officers of the Joint Traffic association, Senator Chandler said: "I have not examined the contract in detail. Apparently the railroad managers have been trying during six months to modify the agreement so as to avoid appearing to violate the law. Yet it now stands as a trust agreement in restraint of trade and commerce, the making of the rates for every road being committed to the board representing all the roads, so that no road can lower any of its rates to the public without violating the agreement.

"The provision for fining each road which may break the agreement and using the fine for the benefit of the other roads is an illegal division of earnings. The president, the attorney general and Chairman Morrison can easily defeat the agreement by procuring the indictment of all the signers, under both the antitrust and antipooling statutes. The recital in the agreement that the managers do not intend to violate the interstate commerce is the meanest subterfuge ever attempted to be imposed upon an intelligent community. The law now explicitly forbids pooling agreements and trusts like this.

"The whole object of the railroad presidents is to make a trust and a pooling agreement, and it is barefaced effrontery to insert this pretense of a desire to observe the law. I can not add anything to my emphatic utterances concerning this crime to what I have said in my letters to the president and his subordinates. If this gigantic trust can deliberately and defiantly trample upon natural law, no trust can be suppressed in America."

LOST NOBLEMAN.

Chicago Police on the Lookout For an English Viscount.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The man who claimed he was Richard Philip Curzeon, and an English viscount as well, and who claimed to the police that he had been robbed, is now being sought by the officers. The last heard of Curzeon he was going the rounds with a levee character known as "Ohio Bill." Some surprise was expressed that a sure enough viscount of good family would pick up a boon companion such as "Ohio Bill." Later developments, however, go to show that the latter gentleman was in worse company than was the viscount. The police are now looking for the nobleman and for the missing pants of "Ohio Bill."

TALK WITH BISMARCK.

Has Many Questions to Ask About the United States.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A dispatch from Berlin says that Prince Bismarck recently received Congressman Richard Bartholdt of St Louis. The ex chancellor asked many questions of the member of the American house of representatives Most of the inquiries were about matters pertaining to the United States. He was especially solicitous concerning the welfare of the Germans who have settled in America Among other questions propounded was an inquiry as to whether the Jews who have left the old world and settled in America are ever persecuted to any extent.

Changed Their Minds.

ROME, N Y., Nov. 21.—Hildreth, one of the train wreckers, told the officers that the attempt to wreck a train 10 days ago was directed against the one which passes Rome for the east at 12:22 a. m., and which often carries rich express bullion. Later the boys changed their minds, and decided that the mail train would be better, because besides the mails the passengers were likely to be wealthy people.

AMERICAN RELIEF COMMITTEE

Make an Appeal For Aid to the Christian World.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The civilized and Christian world is horror stricken over the reports of the massacres of Armenian Christians by the Turks. In addition to the destruction of life, whole villages have been burned, all the property belonging to the Armenians has been destroyed or confiscated, and the survivors—mostly women and children—have been left to starve. The distress is so widespread and the number in actual need of even a crust of bread so large, that relief agencies have been established in London and New York and an appeal is made to the Christian world for aid. The New York committee is made up of men like Bishop Potter, Archbishop Corrigan, Morris K. Jesup, Rev. W. H. P. Faunce, Jacob H. Schiff and Rev. David T. Burrell. Spencer Trask, 27 Pine street, New York, is the treasurer, and contributions forwarded to him will be distributed among the Armenian sufferers through a mixed commission of Armenian missionaries, English consuls and others.

CARLISLE'S SPEECH.

Senator Sherman Criticises Management of Gold Reserve.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Senator Sherman, in an interview yesterday, turned his attention to Secretary Carlisle's speech. The basic error of the speech, he maintained, was the secretary's idea that legal tenders should be done away with. It could not be done. He said in substance: "The great mistake was in the way the Democratic administration had tampered with the gold reserve. It should have issued short bonds of five years' duration, which the people here would have taken up quickly at 3 per cent, and with this paid the expenses of the government instead of trenching on the gold reserve. These short bonds, of course, would have been paid for in legal tender notes. Instead of doing this the administration had permitted domestic and foreign bankers to clear $11,000,000 by selling bonds for gold at 4 per cent."

MORMON ELDERS

Charged With Being a Menace to Good Morals.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 21.—Elders Nobeker and Rogers, who came here Monday to sow seeds of the Mormon faith, were arrested, charged with being a menace to the peace, dignity and good morals of the city. They offered no defense and were fined $200 or 60 days in jail. The mayor stated that execution of judgment would be held in abeyance for one hour, during which time they would be permitted to leave the city under the escort of the chief of police. They immediately left town and said they would leave the state.

CUBAN SURPRISE

Results In Defeat by a Much Smaller Force.

REBELS INCONTINENTLY FLED.

One Hundred and Fifty Spanish Soldiers Steal a March on the Insurgents, Numbering 450, Under Colonel Jose Gonzales, and Easily Put Most of Them to Flight—Heroic Stand of a Squad.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 21.—The Dispatch publishes a letter from its special Cuban correspondent, who is on the field near Cumanojagua, in which he gives details of a battle at Jutia, near Cienfuegos. He says the insurgents, numbering 450, well armed, were defeated by 150 Spanish soldiers through negligence of the insurgent commander, Colonel Jose Gonzales, who failed to mount any guards for protection of his camp When the Spanish forces, who had made a forced march during the night, surprised the camp in the early morning by firing from an adjoining hill, the insurgent officers and men incontinently fled, save only 42 infantrymen, whom Captain Juan Jose Campillo hastily organized and who kept the Spaniards in check for an hour, thus saving the disorganized retreat of the rest of their force from being turned into a slaughter. The retreat of the infantry was then made in good order.

Only 250 of the 450 insurgents had come into camp by the next day, but it is not believed the missing were killed, as most of the fighting was between the 42 insurgents and Spaniards, both sides well covered.

The Cuban forces here swear vengeance upon Colonel Gonzales, and he will probably be shot.

MOTORMAN ROGERS

Testifies Concerning Illfated Car That Plunged Into the River.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—The most important witness examined at the coroner's inquest in the Central viaduct horror was Augustus Rogers, the motorman of the illfated car that plunged into the river He testifies that the conductor ran ahead, when the car stopped at the safety switch, and signalled him "All right." He stated that the glass in the vestibule was blurred by rain, and that he did not discover that the bridge was open until his car was within about 30 feet of the gates. He then turned off the current, set the brake and jumped.

He testified that he saw no red light and believed, had there been one displayed, he would have seen it. He admitted he had been misled by the fact that the electric cutoff provided by the street railway company as a safeguard was out of order. Two other witnesses examined swore that the red light was displayed over the gates when the car struck them.

A RECEIVER OF THE ROAD IS APPOINTED AT AKRON

"A Shrewd Marion Lawyer Wrought Havoc To the Plans" by the Petition Filed Here Last Friday—John Tod, of Cleveland, Made Receiver.

The following from today's Cleveland Leader will be of interest here in connection with the petition for a receiver recently filed at this place by Scofield, Dorfee & Scofield. It will be noticed that one of the parties mentioned is named William Tell instead of William Fell Niswanger and the mortgage of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company is given at $35,000,000 instead of $3,500,000. The Leader article reads as follows:

"A serious danger confronted the Erie reorganization in its proposed absorption of the Nypano. The receivership and foreclosure were not to be asked for until default of interest payment January 1, but a shrewd lawyer down at Marion wrought havoc to the plans by filing a petition in the common pleas court here for a receiver, because a judgment against the Nypano for $5,500 for personal damages was unpaid. The Nypano appealed the case without giving bonds and a statute permitted the judgment creditor under these circumstances to ask for a receiver. The Nypano might have given bond and staved off the receivership, but other judgment creditors would thereby have been encouraged to file similar applications for a receiver. Clearly the best way out of the dilemma was for the company to change its original plans and ask for a receiver at once. This was done yesterday, as told in the following special dispatch to the Leader from Akron:"

"John Tod, of Cleveland, vice president, was today appointed receiver of the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad company by Judge A C. Voris, of this city. The petition under which the appointment was made was filed by the Farmers' Trust company, of New York City, and Herman Drisler and William Tell, trustees for the road, were made party defendants. The petition states that the plaintiff holds a mortgage, dated May 6, 1880, for $35,000,000, which with accrued interest, now amounts to $72,000,000, while the defendant trustees hold a second mortgage for $44,500,000, dated May 7, 1880. A short time after the filing of the petition Judge Voris made the appointment of Mr. Tod, although it was asked that Charles E. Whitehead, of New York City, president of the company, be appointed. The reason was that Mr. Whitehead was not a resident of the state, as required by law. The present indebtedness of the N. Y., P. and O. is $125,000,000, and this receivership is brought that the affairs of the company may be wound up previous to the absorption by the newly organized Erie Company. President Whitehead, Vice President Tod, W. W. McFarland, Esq., of New York, and Attorneys L. A. Russell and S. E. Williamson, of Cleveland, were present in court."

IT'S A BAD PLACE

Strangers Are Decoyed into a Joint on the Bowery by Women.

Citizens above the railroads on north Main street complain of a house that is being conducted without due regard to the proprieties.

Two women, who are disciples of the Bowery, have secured rooms in that neighborhood and at night and during the afternoon decoy farmers and strangers into their abode. Here they are fleeced of whatever money they have about them. Wednesday afternoon the actions of the two women and two drunken farmers were of such a nature that they caused comment from everyone that passed and was noticed quite plainly.

A Scramble in McKinley's Court.

There was a lively little scramble in the court of 'Squire McKinley Wednesday forenoon when the case of O. G. Briggs, as agent for S. J. Briggs, against Charles Collins, asking that he leave his premises, came up. Collins alleged that he was unable to secure justice in this township, and that he would like to have the case tried in Grand Prairie township.

Collins had at first employed J. H. Bartram to act as his attorney, but in the meantime employed John McNally. Briggs then turned around and employed Mr. Bartram. The case was argued at 11 o'clock and after quite a scramble it was decided that the case be heard before a jury in the court of 'Squire McKinley on the 25th.

AGOSTA NEWS.

Notes Personal and Pertinent Concerning People and Events.

Agosta, Nov. 20.—G. W. Prettyman and wife visited relatives in this vicinity Sunday.

We noticed E. G. Stockman, the Prospect nurseryman, on our streets one day last week.

Rev. Brumbaugh is attending district conference at Grant, Hardin county, this week.

The farmers have been improving the fine weather of the past few weeks in harvesting their corn crop. The crop in this vicinity is one of the largest that has been raised for a number of years.

Luther LaRue, who has been suffering with cancer of the face for some time, is in quite poor health, being confined to his home. We hope he may be able to be around again in a short time.

Mr. McCleary, wife and daughter, of Wyandot county, visited Charles Hunter and family Sunday.

There will be quarterly meeting services at the M. E. church Saturday and Sunday. Rev. Avann, our new presiding elder, will be present during the entire session.

Bent Withrow, living south of town, is quite low with paralysis, the result of typhoid fever.

Mell Imbody, the hustling tile manufacturer, is confined to his home with catarrhal trouble of the head and there is great danger that his eyes will be permanently affected from it.

The children of Mayor DeLauder are slowly recovering from the typhoid fever.

The entire families of C. H. and N. T. Prettyman are still feeling the effects of milk sickness.

The mother of Dr. W. H. Dowell, of Mechanicsburg, is visiting him this week.

Mont and Wilbur Marshall, and Tom Davis, claim to be the champion corn huskers of this part of the county. They husked one shock in a half day not long since without sweating even under the collar.

The Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church will hold an oyster supper in the Berger building next Saturday evening. Every one is invited to attend.

Our schools are progressing nicely under the superintendency of Prof. Pennell.

Charles Martin, of Wharton, and Miss Ollie DeLauder, of this place, were united in marriage by Rev. Sutton at his residence in LaRue, Sunday evening. The bride is a daughter of L. H. DeLauder, and one of our successful young teachers. The groom is at present engaged in photography. They at once took up their residence in our village.

Underwear and gloves are our specialties. Martin & Wiley.

Branching Out.

J. D. Heaston, the barber, is in receipt of a letter that calls him to Cleveland. Mr. Heaston has a cure for rheumatism, and while he does not make a business of treating the disease, he has on several occasions made some miraculous cures in this city.

Wednesday he received a letter from J. T. Resch, a Cleveland banker, asking him to come to Cleveland and see Miss Mary Brahs. Miss Brahs has been sick for several years, and for the last four years has been obliged to keep her bed. She has ample means, and physicians all over the land have been called to see her. Mr. Resch offers to pay Mr. Heaston's railroad fare and expenses if he will come to that city and examine her, and if he can cure her money will not be a question.

Who Will Be Deputy.

There has been much talk as to who will be deputy sheriff under Joe Shaw's regime. Before election it was generally talked that a selection had practically been made and that C. L. Patten, of Green Camp, would be the man to serve as deputy in case of Mr. Shaw's election. The story was generally credited to be true, but Mr. Patten now makes known how groundless was the story.

He says that he did not make application for the place, does not intend so to do, and emphatically says that he will not be the next deputy.

Guessing as to who the deputy will be will now proceed.

About an Organ.

After prayer meeting at the Presbyterian church Wednesday night, the congregation held a meeting to decide whether or not it was best to buy a new $1,000 pipe organ.

The matter was discussed, pro and con, by many present, but when it came to a vote only about twelve or fifteen voted for the organ and only one against it.

Under these circumstances when a motion to adjourn was made at this stage of the proceedings, it carried almost unanimously and the question of buying an organ is just where it was before the calling of the meeting.

Married.

OUR BLOOD FILTERS.

BLOOD SHOULD BE AS PURE AS WATER.

What Keeps It Pure and What Happens When It Is Impure.

Our Natural Blood Purifiers, Our Kidneys, How They Keep Us Well, and How We Ought To Keep Them Well.

What makes a sallow complexion, gout, rheumatism, muscular weakness, depression, lack of ambition, and anæmia, chlorosis or green sickness, nervous headache, dizziness, hysteria, Bright's disease, gravel, sleeplessness, pain in the back, diabetes, etc?

It is the failure of our blood filters.

Our blood should be as free from impurities as drinking water.

If it becomes impure we fall sick.

Our kidneys are simply blood filters. They filter the impurities out of the blood. That is why it is so dangerous to have kidney disease, because when our kidneys are sick they cannot keep our blood pure.

Diseases are generally caused by blood poisoning. Especially those mentioned above. The poisoning is caused by impurities in the blood.

These impurities could be kept out if our kidneys were healthy, if they were not worn out, or did not have too much work to do.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys out of sick ones. This means pure blood and the cure of all diseases caused by blood impurities.

Asparagus has a very strong tonic effect on the kidneys. Combined with other herbs it is used in Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, and it is the ingredient which does the kidneys the most good.

The filtering of the blood has probably never been explained to you in this way before.

Yet it is true.

Every physician knows it is true.

A medicine that will cure the kidneys will cure any disease caused by poisoned blood, because, as soon as the kidneys are well, they set about doing their work as it ought to be done.

When our drinking water is pure it will not poison us, and when our blood is pure it will not poison us.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will bring you new life and ambition, cure your pains and aches, give you a bright, rosy complexion, and health, freedom and comfort.

It is not a miracle.

It is simply pure, clean blood.

It is only a question of renewing and cleansing your filters.

It is Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills acting on your kidneys.

All the dangerous diseases of impure blood that doctors are often unable to cure can be cured with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

Rheumatism, gout, Bright's disease, kidney trouble, etc., will all disappear after taking a course of Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

A few doses will relieve. A few boxes will cure.

Sold by all druggists at 50 cents per box or sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Write for valuable pamphlet explaining about the kidneys and their action on the blood. Free on application to Hobb's Medicine Co., Chicago or San Francisco.

HE WOULD HAVE IT UP TO DATE.

Romeo and Juliet Need a Few Modern Additions to Their Costumes.

"The trouble with your play," said the critic, "is that it is not up to date. It is altogether too old fashioned for the times."

"What would you have me do?" asked the manager.

"Make the piece more modern," replied the critic.

"But you forget that we are playing Shakespeare."

"I forget nothing of the kind. Even Shakespeare can be modernized. That is where you make your mistake. You try to play Shakespeare as it it was written years and years ago, and, of course, the public won't have it."

"What ought I to do to make it popular?" asked the manager. "My principal piece is 'Romeo and Juliet.' One certainly can't take many liberties with that."

"Nonsense," returned the critic. "The people are tired of the old fogy Juliet that managers always give them and the only way to satisfy them is to give them one that is thoroughly up to the times in which we live. Take my advice and cast a 'new woman' for Juliet."

"A 'new woman'?"

"Certainly. Then revise the play a little so that she can make her first entrance in bloomers on a wheel. That'll make a hit, sure. Just think of it! Juliet in bloomers! I tell you the people would go miles to see her. It ought to be brought out in the dialogue, too, that she has a record of 28 century runs, if you want to be sure to catch the gallery."

"How about Romeo?" asked the manager, scratching his head dubiously.

"Romeo should come on in a sweater, knickerbockers and long bicycle tights, and he can propose to Juliet while awheel with a motorcycle. The trouble with you is that you haven't enough originality. You must not expect people to take kindly to a Juliet who doesn't keep up to the requirements. Give her a pair of bloomers, a man's hat, a short skirt and cut her hair, and you will play to standing room only all the way from New York to San Francisco."—Chicago Post.

How He Made It Pay.

"Ain't a dollar pretty high for a meal like that?" asked the tourist.

"Depends upon how you look at it, sir," said the landlord of the Cowboys' Rest. "Most of them meals cost me 75 cents or so."

"Well, I want to know that you sell at that figure."

"Yes, I do, but about half the [illegible] who come here for meals get their meals and two tickets, gits killed, and then buys at two meals."—Lucianopolis Journal.

HEROINE OF THE WAR

THE FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE OF THE CHINESE ARMY.

Miss Talcott, a Brave American Missionary—The Splendid Tribute of a Chinese Naval Officer—Christianity Helped by Good Works Rather Than Words.

In conversations I have had with Tsay Chan, the young Chinese naval officer who was in charge of the torpedo fleet at Wei Hai-Wei, and was captured, and has since resided in Japan, he spoke in the highest terms of the Miss Talcott whose hospital and missionary work has been referred to in a former letter. At my request he prepared a testimonial to her, which I give herewith. I learned from him that Miss Talcott is a lady of nearly 60 years of age. She performs her arduous, patient work in an unostentatious way. She keeps away from mass meetings and conventions in order to avoid notoriety. She never talks for publication or refers to her antecedents. Her friends in New England will be pleased to learn that she is highly appreciated here. She enjoys universal respect, and it is conceded that no woman ever labored in this missionary field with such good results as Miss Talcott has obtained. She performs her work under the auspices of the American board. She has been here a number of years and the probabilities are that she will end her days here. The following is the tribute to her noble character, written by the ex prisoner:

"In the early part of February, 1895, a few days after I reached Hiroshima, two Chinese officers from the Japanese hospital came, by order, to stay with us in our place of confinement. They were prisoners from King-Chow, a city about 40 miles northeast of Port Arthur. One of these officers was wounded in the thigh, and the other in the arm. They had been in the hospital about three months and were well pleased with the treatment they received. The Japanese doctors and nurses had been very kind in every way possible, so these officers spoke of them with gratitude.

"But louder still were the praises of these officers over a certain foreign lady, whose kindness and acts of love had made a deep impression on them, as well as the other Chinese prisoners. They related her gifts of candy, oranges and other tokens of sympathy, and although they could not converse with her yet, they knew by her looks and behavior that she had great interest in them. She had given to the Chinese officers and men portions of the New Testament, which were read by those who were able to do so, for many of the soldiers could not read. The officers said they heard Christianity was a perverse doctrine, but they will never say in the future another word against it, for as far as they can judge, its object was kindness and benevolence, so well illustrated by the acts of this lady. They said no amount of preaching could have produced such effect as the simple hearted love of this lady. Their hearts were quite melted by her loving gentleness. I was quite surprised to hear this from such men, whose conservatism was proverbial, but even the most stubborn hearts seem to yield to the piercing rays of Christian love and benevolence. Their conversation so constantly drifted to her good [illegible] that I quite feared [illegible] day, [illegible] feel [illegible] Our [illegible] the Lord [illegible] a glimpse [illegible] our [illegible] but [illegible] for [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. [illegible] was accompanied [illegible] Miss Talcott, [illegible] kindness [illegible] and how [illegible] her countenance was aglow with inward delight and seemed ever ready to soothe and bless the sorrowful and broken hearted. She had in her a mysterious happiness whose deep fountain we could not fathom or understand. Our friends had not given an exaggerated account of her kindness and charity, for we ourselves had the rare opportunity to share these and appreciate their divine effects. Before they left the ladies sang 'The Rock of Ages,' which moved our hearts deeply. The Rev. Mr. Loomis offered prayers, and when he asked God's blessing upon China my tears rolled out involuntarily.

"The second visit we had from Miss Talcott was in April, when the Rev. Mr. Allchin of Osaka came also. They brought a large box of oranges and presented me with a book called 'Jesus and the People.' She asked about our progress in Bible reading and showed a thorough interest in us bodily and spiritually.

"In Osaka many prisoners brought from Hiroshima remembered Miss Talcott with grateful hearts. Altogether the impression she made was deep and pleasant. Her work among them was short, but impressive, and I make bold to say that she could have brought to the fold many a scapegoat were she given the time and opportunity. As it was, I am sure she had done much good. Chinamen are reluctant to acknowledge the superiority of anything foreign, specially Christianity. Although none of them embraced Christianity, yet their prejudice was disarmed and wrong impressions dispelled. They had seen a glimpse of light, glorious beyond any former conceptions. They freely acknowledged among themselves that Christianity had nothing vile about it, but, on the contrary, had high, holy and noble objects in view. They will never speak another derogatory word against it.

"They also spoke of kind missionaries in Korea, where they did much good among the wounded. Many missionaries in Japan had called on them and showed warm sympathy and interest. I have never heard them speak of any missionaries but in terms of the greatest respect and reverence. The general opinion was that no class of people can be so good as true Christians. 'It is good and noble, but how can we attain such virtues?' was their cry of downhearted admiration. The prisoners' words were sincere, for they had no other motives in their loud praises but respect and admiration. I am tempted to draw an inference from my observations that, notwithstanding the obstacles of language, true Christian behavior will manifest itself, and that, no matter how ignorant a people may be, they can appreciate true Christian worth. 'Let your light so shine before men that they may see your works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.'"

This well educated and highly interesting young Chinaman will not be likely to return to China unless some decided political change takes place there. The probabilities are that he will give up his naval career and enter the missionary field. There is also a probability that he may eventually go to the United States and endeavor to gain a livelihood by teaching and writing. At present he seems to be anxious to have the world forget him—that portion at least designated on the map as China.—John A. Cockerill in Yokohama Letter to New York Herald.

"SOLID SOUTH" NO MORE.

Bradley's Election as Governor of Kentucky and Its Omens.

Now that the excitement incidental to closely contested elections has subsided politicians are able to calmly view the situation as it is revealed in the various states. The result in Kentucky is conceded by these politicians to be most significant, especially in its bearing on the presidential contest, inasmuch as it obliterates the line of demarkation between the north and the "solid south" and brings Colonel Bradley to the front as a plausible candidate for the vice presidency.

John C. New of Indianapolis, having made a remark on election day to the effect that if Colonel Bradley were elected it would make him the Republican candidate for vice president, was pressed the other day for an elucidation of his remark, and he said:

"The election of Colonel Bradley as governor of Kentucky—the first practical break of the solid south—argues the fact that sectional lines no longer, as between north and south, divide the people upon issues that are of national importance.

"The Republican party, following the example of General Grant at Appomattox, is desirous of having a united country for the benefit of the whole nation. It is anxious to obliterate sectional lines. It will now recognize, I believe, in the election of Colonel Bradley as governor of the state of Henry Clay, the great exponent of protection, that Republican principles are pervading the whole country.

"It would be an exceedingly fitting time for the next Republican convention to nominate for vice president the first man who has succeeded in successfully contesting a race in a southern state on Republican principles.

"It is also exceedingly fitting, therefore, that the Republican party in its next campaign should take up such a man as W. O. Bradley who has the confidence of his people, for vice president."—New York Journal.

He Didn't Know What He Was.

In a Syracuse (N. Y.) school recently one of the teachers thought it would be a good idea to see how the scholars stood regarding the present political situation. She asked each scholar to write on a slip of paper the name of the candidate for mayor he or she thought would win the election. A little boy about 7 years old raised his hand, and when permitted to speak said: "Please, teacher, my father's out of town, and I don't know what I am."—Syracuse Post.

FEDERATED WOMEN.

Work Along the Lines of Political and Domestic Economy.

In a final glance at the General Federation of Woman's Clubs it is impossible not to notice the great progress the clubs throughout the country have made in their interest in municipal and political affairs. Mrs. Heurotin, the president of the federation, lately said that the result of her latest observation of club life was that the most recent growth in club work was along the lines of civic investigation, political economy and all the municipal and reform movements of the day. It is said that in New York city alone there are now 125 political study clubs. Whether this estimate be absolutely correct or not it is certain that there has been an enormous growth in that direction within the past year.

There is another growing feature of club life which is coming rapidly to the front, and that is the attention paid to domestic science. Probably not a better and more practical example is set in this line by any club in the country than by the Improvement society of Orange, N. J., an organization which was an outgrowth of the famous Woman's club of Orange. This Improvement society has almost 300 members, and after the streets, trolleys, railway stations, hospitals and schools, it established day nurseries and won the grateful thanks of scores of toiling mothers. Its latest activity is directed toward solving the greatest question which confronts the housewife in America—the servant girl problem.

The initial step was in the establishment of a Domestic Training association. A score of good, available girls are to be taken and carefully instructed in their duties as cooks, nurses, housemaids, laundresses and waitresses. They are properly instructed as to the respective duties and obligations of mistress and maid, on neatness, cleanliness, promptness and all the relations which have disturbed this vexed question. When these 20 girls are considered to be properly trained, they are graduated, given places and 20 more are taken.

In Massachusetts, where it seems as if they can't get the women to vote affier all, there are many improvement societies and clubs devoted to municipal affairs, especially in the suburban towns. In these places the women have educated public sentiment in regard to beautiful streets, have succeeded in having more artistic railroad stations built, have laid out public flower gardens and have had an eye to the preservation of New England's historic elm, in many cases literally fulfilling the sentiment of "Woodman, spare that tree."

The west is the foremost in such work also. One of the most important of the standing committees of the Woman's council of Quincy, Ills., is the municipal committee. This committee is literally an important adjunct to the city government. It has purchased street waste-baskets and placed them about the town, and the rash man or heedless youth who flings not his cigarette stump, his paper wrappings or his fruit peel into those baskets instead of in the street may live to regret the evil hour in which he recked not of the municipal committee, for its members have the power of causing arrest for violating city ordinances. It has also helped to improve the public parks, is informed as to the rate of taxation and its apportionment for different purposes, looks after street paving, signboards, sewerage and tenement houses.

One of the most interesting cities in the country in which to observe club life for women is Washington. Dr. Ella M. S. Marble, the president of the District federation, sends me along an interesting report, in which she says: "The federation is devoting its best thought and work to a revision of the laws of the District of Columbia regarding the legal status of women. It has also prepared an exhibit of the line of work pursued by each club for the Atlanta exposition. At the first annual meeting of the federation 2,500 women were represented. The Woman's National Press association at Washington is the oldest organization of its kind in the world. It has an active membership of 150, with auxiliary members in many states. Through its efforts seats were set apart in both houses of congress for women journalists. It has for many years made its headquarters at Willard's hotel, where it has held one business and one public meeting per month. The latter has varied greatly in character as to Washington or me all the highest literary men and women of the world. Home its resources have been almost unlimited."

HER REFORM DRESS.

A BRIGHT YOUNG LADY ADOPTS A PRACTICAL COSTUME.

Her Experience Proves It to Be a Distinctive Gown For Health, Purse and Convenience, but She Has Lost Her Beau.

I have adopted and am wearing dress reform!

Every intelligent citizen, man or woman, will admit that a business woman is handicapped by the ridiculous decrees of fashion in dress. This convinced me I was not extreme in demanding a practical costume.

Yet, the chains of conventionality had a strong hold on me, and it was not until I had lost a very important paper (I am a newspaper woman) in grasping my skirts that I determined I must obviate the difficulty or let the men do all the reporting.

As my very existence depended upon a business effort I resolved to get rid of a skirt that required manipulation other than hanging from a supported belt. I found my hands were needed for more important duties.

Another consideration and by no means a trivial one:

In my five or six years at newspaper work I had endeavored to appear "dressed up," ready for society work, ready for any work save that of investigating an honest charity, for in climbing a tenement stairs the women about always looked at me in disgust as I endeavored to save my skirts from the uncertainty of a thoroughfare.

This dressing up, which was by no means extravagant, cost me at least $175 a year.

This included, of course, hats, gloves and all that is necessary to keep a woman up to date. If a working woman can afford that, it would seem she must have what is termed "a political job."

I could not go into an office in last season's clothes, dragged and discouraged, or my confidence and my employer's confidence would be lost.

Another powerful incentive: My skirts weighed me down, seven pounds, like a seven pound weight, pulling at my spine. This part of the argument has but one side to it.

Therefore I resolved, and with me a number of working women and students, that a practical uniform suit must be adopted if we must work. This must be a dress or costume which could be worn on every working day in the year until worn out, as with a man's business suit. Church, theater, etc., were entirely different considerations.

The dress we decided upon consists of an ordinary undershirt, with no attempt at waist or corset; muslin or hosiery undergarments, or, better still, a union undersuit; if desired, a pair of black equestrienne tights; a black divided skirt, ending just above the knees and being sufficiently full to disguise the outlines of form; leggings and the club dress, as shown above, which is lined only in the waist and contains not one inch of bone or crinoline.

This entire outfit costs about $15.50 as compared with the most ordinary business suit of $25, which must be dropped as soon as the collar goes out of style or after one good wetting, which demolishes the crinoline. The undergarments worn with the old time suit cost easily half as much as the suit itself. Therefore we of the new school calculate to save an ordinary salary, leaving aside the refreshing comforts, the untold freedom of traveling about with a valise instead of a trunk and allowing dry goods merchants to pay for their own advertisements.

But the difficulties to be met with in the courageous effort must also be considered. The majority of men are bitter against dress reform. While ready to admit a woman is pestered with skirts and made almost incapable of performing business duties, yet they say it is too bad and so dismiss the question. Some few look to the merits of reform and prudently encourage it. A professor of a college grasped my hand and declared he was proud to meet one woman capable of doing what she considered right because of her honest convictions and in spite of public opinion. Another man told me confidentially he was really glad to be free from dodging my skirts in the office. The car conductors fairly beam upon my possibilities of safety, women with babies gave me the money to get their railroad tickets for them, hardworking men sat close to me in the cars without dread of their heavy shoes touching my skirts or their well worn coats rushing my sleeves, dudes counted the buttons on my leggings and in one day I realized what it was to be an American citizen, with rights of my own and an acknowledgment of those of others.

Rainy days I am able to run about without contracting bronchitis or pneumonia, a stout pair of rubbers protect my feet and an umbrella does the rest. Cold days I wear an ulster cut off the length of the skirt; for less severe weather I wear a jacket or cape. An incident occurred one day shortly after my first appearance which to me demonstrated to what a ridiculous extent woman had become artificial.

I was attempting to step on a car when it gave a sudden jolt. A gentleman put his hand out to assist me and so touched my waist. His amazement at discovering live matter to be somewhere under my cloth waist amounted almost to a shock, for he immediately withdrew his aid and glared at me. The situation appeared to me so ridiculous I fell to thinking that the average woman must consider it a crime to actually live and therefore endeavors to mitigate the offense with corsets, etc. I in no way blamed the man.

General opinion on the dress is very much varied. All women declare it to be lovely, but some think the time for such a move has not yet come, or, in other words, have not the courage to try it. The grace of a full sweeping skirt is not to be questioned, allowing, of course, that working women can afford this grace and withstand its difficulties. I have been called a strong minded woman, and, in fact, quite delighted in the little frivolities allowed my position; hence this move has had a telling effect on my friends. In reality through it I have lost one who was supposed to have stronger motives than these of admiration for the hang of my skirt. Men who hang around hotels speak loud enough for their remarks to reach my ears, but my only regret is that in days gone by I should have appeared before this element dressed stylishly enough to perhaps elicit from them a single compliment. WINIFRED EDWARDS.

An Artistic Blotter.

The blotter and postal card holder combined is offered as a suggestion for the Christmas tree, which, far ahead as it now looks to be, will be clamoring for attention before we are well aware. It has the rare merit of being suitable for men and for women folk alike and in addition can be made by any one who is at all clever at drawing simple designs.

The foundation is tan colored sole leather. When you have found a smooth, perfect piece, cut from it two rectangular portions, one measuring 10 inches by 7½, one 7½ by 5.

Lay the smaller, which is to form the pocket, upon the larger and mark where it falls. Then, if you have a vulcan point, proceed to burn in the design with it. If not, you will find that any pointed bit of iron, such as the nearest blacksmith can make and fit to a wooden handle, will answer all needful demands for so simple a piece of work. Etch the border on the upper part and then the scrolls. Make the pocket somewhat heavier in decoration, as the drawing indicates.

When both are finished, lay the pocket piece in place and with a shoemaker's punch make holes through both pieces round three of its sides. Cut an eighth of an inch strip of the leather and with it lace the pocket firmly into place.

Near the top of the back punch four holes and through them pass a strip of leather, which allow to form two loops by which the case can be hung. Cut buff blotting paper into the exact size, making three or four sheets. Through the upper end of these make holes and tie all together with brown "baby" ribbon, being sure to make a bowknot in the outer side. Paste these neatly to the leather. When dry, there will be formed a perfectly neat back, and when necessary the outer blotters can be slipped off the ribbon and fresh ones be put in their place. Then before doing any of the decorative work cover the board neatly and paste down the edges of the leather on the underside. CLARE BUNCE.

Fashionable Novelties.

The new evening laces show some novel features. There are silk nets in black, blue, white, pink, orange, maize, heliotrope, poppy and cardinal. These run 45 inches wide, and are frequently tacked in several rows around the bottom. There are a few spangled or beaded net patterns, but many of those mentioned above have satin stripes in the same color, and some have plaids made in thin lines—cross barred, some call them. The barring makes the net stronger, but no prettier, and not as light. Chiffon and silk mull are presented in all the seasonable colors, and they make very delicate and ethereal dancing dresses. Owing to the width of the material and the fact that next to no trimming is required for dancing dresses for the young, they cost but little.

SLEEPY, DULL, languid and morose, is the way you feel when your liver fails to do its work properly; in consequence you suffer from indigestion, biliousness, and dyspepsia. You have a "don't care" spirit and a "played out" feeling, and everything tires you.

To set the liver in action, purify and enrich the blood, and to strengthen and vitalize the whole system, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Having a peculiar tonic effect upon the lining membrane of the stomach and bowels, it makes a lasting cure of all stomach, liver and bowel disorders. By increasing the blood supply, as well as enriching it, all the organs of the body are strengthened, and the nerves are fed on pure, rich blood.

Neuralgia is the "cry of the starved nerves for food"; nervous debility and exhaustion, sleeplessness and nervous prostration are in most instances the direct result of a starved condition of the blood. The true way to cure these ailments permanently is to take the "Golden Medical Discovery," which was discovered and prescribed by an eminent physician, Dr. R. V. Pierce, at present chief consulting physician and specialist to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. If you want a medical opinion on your case, write him. It will cost you nothing.

A Book of 136 pages on "Diseases of the Digestive Organs," will be mailed to any address on receipt of postage, six cents. It contains names, addresses and reproduced photographs of a vast number of people who have been cured of dyspepsia, "liver complaint," chronic diarrhea, and kindred ailments by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sir—A few of my symptoms were heartburn and fullness after eating, sometimes pain in my bowels and bad taste in my mouth, sometimes I was dizzy, as with a feeling of fullness over eyes. After taking your "Golden Medical Discovery," I was relieved of all these symptoms and I feel perfectly well. Yours truly,

Florida Baptisms and Flowers.

The Spectator of The Outlook the other day met a friend who had just returned from a journey in the south. Some of his experiences in that pleasant and kindly land filled him with amazement, but the methods of railway management seemed stranger perhaps to him than anything else. "In Florida," he said, "the railway conductor was a gentleman, a real gentleman, who treated his passengers as though they were his personal guests. For their comfort and pleasure he was most solicitous, and I venture to say that he would gladly have done anything possible within his power to gratify any wish of which he had knowledge. And what is more, he appeared to have power to do whatever he chose. Two ladies admired the gorgeous tropical flowers that grew in abundance near the railway track. 'Would you like some?' he asked, and when they said that they would, he pulled the bell rope and stopped the train. With his brakesmen as assistants he went out and gathered great armfuls, quite filling two or three seats with these lively flowers; then he signaled to the engineer and the journey was resumed.

"That was fine," the Spectator's friend said, "but I could not help thinking that it was a trifle shiftless at the same time and also perhaps a little dangerous, but as no harm came of it it may be that the conductor knew what he was about." In the Spectator's mind there was no doubt that the conductor knew what he was about and that he did entirely the correct thing. In a land of flowers, where the most beautiful blossoms may be had for the gathering, it is not fitting that men should be the slaves of time.

Modern Apple Butter.

Here is the new way of making apple butter, as described in the New York Tribune: Boil and skim for 30 minutes 12 gallons of cider direct from the press. Then dump 2½ bushels of pared, cored and cut apples into the kettle all at once. Smokehouses are extra nice for the purpose. Boil and stir constantly for 3½ hours. Add 20 pounds brown sugar and a quarter of a pound of ground cinnamon. Boil a half hour longer and bale out into jars what will be a more delicious apple sauce than was ever made by the old time process. It will be free from the strong, boiled cider flavor of our mothers' apple butter which was so disagreeable to most persons. If inclined to foam when the fruit is first added, a small piece of butter will mollify it. Of course you can use larger quantities in the same proportions, according to the size of kettle. The above quantity will give from 40 to 45 quarts, according to juiciness of the apples, and will keep if necessary two years.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5 if it could not be had for less. A Critic of Americans Abroad.

Diamonded Daisy Millers—writes a correspondent—the Anglo-American hotels in Paris overflow with them. Tens, twenties, fifties of pretty girls in faultless Parisian toilets, many of them in their teens, one and all displaying diamonds enough to set up an actress, one and all speaking—but, no, let me allude to a more genial topic. Many family parties one sees—fathers and sons dressed according to the last new fashion in male attire, and the sociableness among these fellow travelers is gratifying to witness. I was much struck by the surprise of a French friend at this trait of national character.

After the table d'hote dinner of a favorite hotel the company—save for myself and friend entirely transatlantic—broke up into cheerful little groups, laughing and chatting over the experiences of the day. The Frenchman observed to me: "You would never find such good fellowship among my own country people thrown together in a foreign country. Instead of seeking we avoid each other under such circumstances. I must say what I have seen tonight gives me a very favorable impression of American character. And if these young girls while here spend their time chiefly in shopping and frivolity doubtless they are ready enough to enter upon the serious business of life on their return home." I hope this criticism will find its way, as has done much less friendly kind, "across the pond." —London News.

The Famous Old Willow Ware.

You may know a plate of old willow ware by this decoration: On the right here is a mandarin's country seat. In the foreground there should be a pavilion, in the background an orange tree and to the right a peach tree. The place is inclosed by a fence, and through the estate there should wander a brook, and in the brook there is an island high at the left side with a cottage on it. Over the brook there is a bridge, and on it there should be three figures. The willow tree, the famous willow tree, is at one end and a gardener's cottage at the other. Two birds are high in the air above the picture. The whole is supposed to tell the romance of the mandarin's daughter, who is one of the figures on the bridge. The others are her lover and the mandarin himself. The birds are turtle doves into which the lovers were changed by the gods that they might escape the wrath of father mandarin, who pursued them.—New York Post.

How To Prevent Croup.

Some reading that will prove interesting to young mothers. How to guard against the disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by L. H. Flocken, druggist.

"I—I must confess that it is. How do you know?"

"I put a postal card addressed to myself among the lot, and it hasn't yet reached me. It only costs a cent, and I find that is a very effective way of keeping check on the rest of my mail. Now, dear, if you will hand me the letters, I'll run out and post them myself."—Washington Star.

It Has a Drawback.

"George," she said—and the way she wrinkled her pretty brow showed that she was troubled—"do you know anything about motocycles?"

"Very little, dearest," he replied as he drew her closer to him.

For a few minutes she remained buried in thought, and then she looked up at him again and said:

"You don't know, then, whether the motocycle principle is applicable to sleighs, do you?"

"No-o," he answered slowly, "I don't, but I don't think it is."

"Then there would be no moonlight sleigh rides with the motocycle," she suggested, half inquiringly; "no narrow little cutter with a high back and a high dashboard and a great big buffalo robe that almost hides you from sight and makes everything seem so nice and cozy; no gliding over the white snow so smoothly that you hardly feel the motion and decide that you would like to go through life in just that way, with just that one person beside you?"

"I'm afraid not," he said regretfully.

"No big sleighing parties," she went on; "none of the lovemaking that is so particularly identified with the sleigh?"

"No."

She was silent again for a few minutes. Then she looked trustingly into his eyes as she said:

"I don't think much of motocycles after all, do you?"

"Not for winter use," he replied.—Chicago Post.

The contest for the speakership of the Ohio house of representatives may be of passing interest to the politicians, but the public is not greatly concerned as to who wins.

Maybe that wild animal story that comes from the jungles of Delaware county arises from the fact that the farmers have sighted a chrysanthemum head of hair above the brush.

While in Washington the other day ex-Governor Campbell said that he "is only a candidate for heaven." There should be no politics in the hope that he will improve his running qualities.

Gen. Harrison passed Joe Manley, manager of the Reed forces, in a New York hotel the other day without speaking to him. Now if the Harrison boom finds a tack in the road it will know who put it there.

Occasionally a Hoosier newspaper breaks out in a shout for McKinley. The outbursts are few and far between and rather isolated now, but they are calculated to raise goose flesh on the Harrison boom.

"Patronize home labor, home merchants and home industries. It's a good way to build up the city," says the Mansfield News. That's sound advice and is just as applicable to Marion as to Mansfield. While there is no occasion for faultfinding here, the injunction is good enough to paste in your hat.

The board of health at Portsmouth, O., is under the imputation of being criminally careless in handling an epidemic of diphtheria. Irritated by these charges the board held a secret meeting at which it went after its health officer and ordered the schools closed. There is now a war on in that city which may result in some good being done.

The trial of Col. Coit will be begun over again December 2. After the jurors which had been hearing the case were dismissed they permitted it to be given out that they were unanimous for acquittal. Another trial will add greatly to the costs of the case, which now aggregate considerable, and which will have to be paid by Fayette county. It is an expensive endeavor to vindicate a mob.

According to his own statements Governor-elect Bushnell does not intend to make a clean sweep of the Ohio offices. He is quoted as saying: "Many of the Republicans now holding offices in Ohio have served the state well and faithfully, and there will in all probability be a number who will continue to hold their positions during my administration." Evidently Mr. Bushnell is still "a plain business man."

Harry Hayward, the murderer of Catharine Ging, must hang. The supreme court of Minnesota has so decided by affirming the judgment of the lower court. This is a sorry year for murderers and people are beginning to show an increased amount of faith in the power of the courts to convict criminals. With Hayward, Durrant and Holmes, three conspicuous offenders, disposed of with neatness and dispatch, the lesson should have its wholesome influences.

THEY WILL SETTLE.

CROWLEY & SCANLAN AND THE CITY COME TO AN AGREEMENT.

Council Holds a Special Session at Which It Authorizes Solicitor Crissinger To Meet the Proposition of the Bay City, Mich., Firm.

The city council met in special session this morning at 11 o'clock, with members Busard, Dickerson, Rapp, Berry, Stroble and Harsch, City Solicitor Crissinger and City Engineer Bowen present.

In the absence of Clerk Williams, Mr. Bowen acted as clerk and the meeting was called to order by President Busard.

City Solicitor Crissinger stated that, in the matter of Crowley & Scanlan against the City of Marion, in the court of company pleas, counsel had about arranged a settlement subject to the approval of the council.

After some discussion it was decided to accept the proposition of Crowley & Scanlan and settle the case, and a resolution was drafted and passed authorizing the city solicitor to accept the proposition made by Crowley & Scanlan, the resolution naming the amount to be paid in settlement at $3696, with interest.

The amount claimed by Crowley & Scanlan was $7400, so the matter was compromised and the case settled for about sixty cents on the dollar.

There being no further business before the council the meeting adjourned.

Results from an Exciting Runaway This Forenoon.

An exciting runaway occurred on State street at about 11 o'clock this forenoon. Prof. Powell had sent Frank Bauer with his horse to his residence on an errand. Frank had performed the duty and was returning to the school house, when a team of horses owned by Samuel Bent and driven by a young man named Miles became frightened at the street roller and ran north.

The driver could not get the horses under control and Bauer was right in front of the team and could not get away. The pole of the wagon owned by Bent struck the back of Prof Powell's buggy and it was wrecked. Frank Bauer, the driver, was thrown under the debris and the horses passed one on each side of him.

The Bent team was stopped, but Prof. Powell's horse now became frightened, and with a fragment of the broken buggy hanging to it ran north until it reached the open woods, when it was stopped and brought back. Young Bauer received but very slight injuries. His back was hurt some but not seriously.

PENALTY OF GREATNESS.

Here Are Three Little Roasts from Galion Town.

The moon can't help being bayed at by the dogs, and it doesn't hurt the moon anyway.

The following paragraphs are from the Galion Leader:

Number 5 now changes engines in Galion. Only five minutes are allowed to make the change, but the crew does it just the same. No one wants to change engines in a way station like Marion.

Marion sandbaggers caught another victim Monday night, Charles Seifferlan, of Shelby, who was knocked down and robbed of about sixty-three dollars. Marion is a great place—for slugs and cut-throats and wooden policemen.

Traveling men who are compelled to change cars at Marion are cautioned to carry an arsenal with them or to be accompanied by a private detective. Monday night Marion's thieves stole a dress suit from a commercial traveler at one of the Marion depots.

RAILROAD NOTES

E. C. Kinny, trainmaster of the Big Four, was in the city today.

The Erie pay car was in the city today and made the boys happy.

The rate for the Christmas holidays as agreed upon by the Central Traffic association will be one and one-third fare.

J. R. Cavanaugh, superintendent of car service of the Big Four, says that the demand for cars continues to be unprecedented. The roads in this territory are strained to their utmost to furnish cars to supply the demand for them.

According to Poor's Manual of the Railroads of the United States, the total railway mileage of the country the latter part of last October, aggregated 180,815 miles, and of this number 38 613 miles were operated under receivership. The total length of the street railway lines for the same period was 13,176 miles, an increase of 3,511 over 1891. The capitalization of 12,797 miles of surface was $520,745,823 stock and $367,694 33 per mile of bonds, equal to $60,021 per mile, against $56,611 per mile for steam railroads. Two new tables of railroad statistics form interesting reading, showing mileage, equipment, capital and income accounts, as well as monthly gross earnings. In addition to these statistics there is a complete directory of the railway officials of the country.

A FORMIDABLE YACHT.

Will Be So Built That It Can Be Transformed Into a War Vessel.

F. W. Morgan of Chicago has just let the contract for a steam steel yacht, resembling a modern torpedo boat of the Ericsson type and so built that it can in a few hours be transformed into a formidable war vessel for service on the great lakes. It will be schooner rigged, with two pole masts, supplied with an outfit of sails, to be used in case of accident to the machinery, which will give the yacht a speed of four or five miles an hour. The vessel will be built of steel, divided by five steel watertight bulkheads into six compartments, and its dimensions will be: Length on water line, 110 feet; on deck, 130; beam, on water line, 17 feet 4 inches; on deck, 18 feet 3 inches.

The bow will project six feet beyond the deck, sloping out and down to the water line. From the water line the fore foot is cut away, so as to give it the ram shape similar to the bows of the United States cruisers Minneapolis, New York and Columbia. The engine will be of the triple expansion type, with cylinders 13, 19½ and 20 inches diameter by 15 inches stroke. This will turn a bronze screw propeller, 5 feet 6 inches in diameter, 300 revolutions per minute and give the yacht a speed of 18 miles per hour.

In building the vessel special care will be taken to have it conform to the requirements of the navy department, as well as the Inland Lloyds. The object is to build a ship that in a few hours can be turned into a war vessel in case of trouble with Canada. It will be built at Racine.—New York Herald.

Talking Through a Stream of Water.

"I have a most remarkable telephone in my house," remarked a resident of the western addition. "I noticed that at times I could hear very distinctly the conversation in the next house. Suddenly it would be broken off short in the middle of a sentence, and I could not hear another word. It would become audible again just as suddenly.

"By a series of experiments I have found out that the sound is conducted by the water running through the pipes. When the water is turned on in my house, I can hear all the conversation in any of the rooms next door in which there is running water. When I turn off the water, all sounds stop suddenly.

"I told my neighbor of it, and we have put it to practical use. When I wish to speak to him, I tap on the window, he turns on the water in his house and listens while I talk to him over the water pipe in an ordinary tone of voice. When I have finished, he turns off the water in his house and I turn it on in mine and listen. In that way we can carry on long conversations with as much ease as if he were in the room with me. Still our houses are about 20 feet apart."—San Francisco Post.

One of Eugene's Tricks.

A story that has been written about Field concerns the trick he played on two carloads of Kansas City merchants who went away one time on an excursion. Each car was to go by a different route, and the cars separated at an early hour in the morning when everybody was asleep except Gene Field, who was along to write up the trip. Just before the cars parted company he carried all the shoes from one sleeper into the other and carefully exchanged them. Then he took the shoes from the sleeper that had a double supply and carried them into the sleeper where nobody had any shoes. The next morning there was a blue streak two ways across Kansas. Every man in both sleepers was miles and miles away from his own shoes.—St. Louis Republic.

His Imperial Highness Meant Well.

There was a curious story, which I am told is true, that the emperor of China, having obtained relief from some ailment by the use of patent pills that were sent him from Europe, ordered 400 pounds of that remedy through a Tientsin druggist and sent them to Korea to be distributed among the Chinese troops. But they never reached their destination. Some skeptical or superstitious mandarin had them dumped into the sea.—Chicago Record.

DUNRAVEN'S CHARGE.

Nothing so serious as foul play was suggested over here. His complaint came simply as the casual crankiness of a bad tempered and exasperated man. As we all know, we raced with Lord Dunraven and he returned home, and since his insolence has reached the point to which it has developed in England, we leave it to The Pall Mall Gazette and all self respecting Englishmen to see that he is properly horsewhipped over there, as he ought to be. They owe it to us.—New York Sun.

Dunraven's charge is a charge of rascality against the gentlemen of the Defender syndicate and against the New York Yacht club. The charge that Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Iselin, the syndicate, would stoop to such acts is as insulting as absurd. They and the gentlemen composing the New York Yacht club are safe from injury by allegations of unsportsmanlike action. Dunraven seems determined to compel Americans who sympathize with him in defeat to substitute contempt for sympathy.—Utica Herald.

If he believed that a club of which he was a member had been guilty of robbery and conspiracy, he ought to have promptly notified his belief and given his colleagues time without wasting until he had reached the other side of the Atlantic. According to his own statement, Dunraven is a coward. Any further racing with Dunraven is out of the question, for he has barred himself from the society of gentlemen. But the New York Yacht club ought to demand that its "honorary" member, Lord Dunraven, substantiate or withdraw his charges of cheating.—Binghamton Republican.

HE IS AN OLD TIMER.

GENERAL GEORGE WALLACE JONES SOON TO ISSUE HIS MEMOIRS

The Oldest Living Ex-Senator—Was In Congress With Clay, Webster, Benton, Corwin and Polk—His Dueling Days—An Interesting Character.

Word has reached Washington that George Wallace Jones of Iowa, the oldest retired United States senator living and the contemporary of James Monroe, John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson, is about completing his long expected autobiography and will have it ready for the press in a few weeks. The announcement will be received throughout the country with lively interest, for the epochs covered are so far back as to be fresh and new to readers of today, and Jones is known to possess a greater fund of personal reminiscences of public men and things of national note in the long ago than anybody else now surviving.

Unlike Senator Sherman's new book, dealing with statesmen both living and dead, Jones' forthcoming memoirs, which promise to be equally interesting, will treat altogether of statesmen passed away, except himself, and he is still very much alive. Though nearly 92 years old, a "last leaf" in point of age, he is by no means such in health and strength, and his mental vigor is quite unimpaired. It is hard in these latter days of the century to conceive that there is a national character still above ground who served as a drummer boy in the war of 1812, who had the honor of naming two states back in the thirties, who enjoyed an intimate acquaintance with all the presidents since Madison, who rode beside the Marquis de Lafayette when that hero toured through America in 1824, who sat in the lower branch of congress with Polk and Bell and Lincoln before they gained prominence, and in the upper house with Clay and Webster and Benton and Houston and Corwin, and who bore a part in most of the great political events of our first half century as a republic. But Jones is just such a figure. He has done all those things, and in his book he will sketch them out in a touch and go manner that cannot fail to charm the present generation.

Jones, like most other public men of that time, was a great believer in the "code" and figured in seven different duels, although a principal in only one. The most notable of these duels was that between Cilley of Maine and Graves of Kentucky, in which Jones acted as Cilley's second. The meeting occurred on the outskirts of Washington, near the Marlboro road, and grew out of a debate in congress. Jones was induced to act as Cilley's second by Franklin Pierce, then a congressman. Rifles were chosen as the weapons, and three rounds were fired. On the third round Cilley fell dead with a bullet in his brain. The sensation that ensued in congress and throughout the country was extreme and resulted eventually in the enactment of stringent laws placing dueling on the same level as murder.

Four days after retiring from the senate, on March 8, 1859, Jones was appointed by President Buchanan as minister to Bogota, New Granada (now Colombia). He remained there until November, 1861, when he was recalled by the Lincoln administration and shortly afterward confined as a suspected secessionist of great influence in Fort Lafayette, New York. Since then he has lived chiefly at Dubuque, Ia.

A signal honor was accorded him by the people who knew him best on April 12, 1891, the occasion of his ninetieth birthday, when the state of Iowa gave him a public reception and banquet at Des Moines, presided over by the governor and attended by both houses of the legislature, the executive council, the supreme judiciary and the most distinguished citizens of the state. He is now residing at Grosse Pointe, Mich., ten miles from Detroit. In a recent letter to friends in Washington he says:

"I have been importuned for many years by friends and correspondents all over the country to write my biography, but hitherto I resisted their entreaties, thinking that the play would not be worth the candle. Last December, however, a year ago I came here (Villa St. Vrain, Grosse Pointe), on a visit and my grandniece extracted from me, nolens volens, the promise to spend the summer of 1895 with her and her husband in writing my life, they agreeing to furnish me with stenographers, typewriters, readers and all other conveniences to that end. Accordingly I set to work and now we have nearly 300 pages completed and made ready in proper style. I am in perfect health, and have been since 1827."—Atlanta Constitution.

High License In Massachusetts.

I beg leave to correct the statement in The Sun that Haverhill, Mass., pays the highest liquor license in the country—viz. $2,000. Great Barrington, in the same state, pays $2,300 and Pittsfield has paid $2,000 for the last six years.—New York Sun.

PENN-YAN BILL.

[By Eugene Field.]

In gal'ant old Kentucky, where the grass is very blue,
Where the pigeon is the smoothest and the girls are fair and true,
Where the crop of Virginny gentlemen is full of heart and soul,
And the stock of four time winners is the finest in the land,
Where the Democratic party in bourbon hardihood
For more than half a century unterrified has stood,
Where nod the black eyed Susans to the prattle of the rill—
There—there befell the wooing of Penn-Yan Bill.

Down yonder in the cottage that is nestling in the shade
Of the walnut trees that seem to love that quiet little glade
Abides a pretty maiden by the bonny name of Susie—
As pretty as the black eyed flowers and quite as modest too.
And lovers came there by the score, of every age and kind,
But not one (the story goes) was quite to Susie's mind.
Their sighs, their protestations and their pleadings made her ill—
Till all at once upon the scene hove Penn-Yan Bill.

He came from old Montana, and he rode a broncho mare,
He had a rather howdy do and rough and tumble air.
His trousers were of buck-kin and his coat of furry stuff;
His hat was drab of color, and its rim was wide enough.
Upon each leg a stalwart boot reached just above the knee,
And in the belt about his waist his weapon carried he;
A rather strapping lover for our little Susie—still
She was his choice, and he was hers, was Penn Yan Bill!

We wonder that the ivy seeks out the oaken tree
And twines her tendrils round him, though scarred and gnarled he be;
We wonder that a gentle girl, unused to worldly cares,
Should choose a man whose life has been a constant scrap with bears.
Ah, 'tis the nature of the vine, and of the maiden, too—
So when the bold Montana boy came from his lair to woo
The fair Kentucky blossom felt all her heart strings thrill
Responsive to the purring of Penn Yan Bill.

He told her of his cabin in the mountain far away,
Of the catamount that howls by night, the wolf that yaups by day;
He told her of the grizzly with the automatic jaw,
He told her of the Injun who devours his victims raw;
Of the jawhawk with his tawdry crest and whiskers in his throat,
Of the great gosh awful serpent and the Rocky mountain goat;
A book as big as Shakespeare's or as Webster's you could fill
With the yarns that emanated from Penn-Yan Bill!

Lo, as these mightly prodigies the westerner relates,
Her pretty mouth falls wide agape—her eyes get big as plates;
And when he speaks of varmints that in the Rockies grow,
She shuddered and she clings to him and timidly cries "oh!"
And then says he, "Dear Susie, I'll tell you what to do—
You be my wife, and none of these 'ere things dare pester you!"
And she? She answers, clinging close and trembling yet, "I will,"
And then he gives her one big buss, does Penn-Yan Bill.

Avaunt, ye poet lovers, with your wishy-washy lays!
Avaunt, ye solemn pedants, with your musty, bookish ways!
Avaunt, ye smirking dandies who air your etiquette
Upon the gold your fathers worked so long and hard to get!
How empty is your nothingness beside the sturdy tales
Which mountaineers delight to tell of border hills and vales—
Of snakes that crawl, of beasts that yowl, of birds that flap and trill
In the wild egregious altitude of Penn-Yan Bill.

Why, over all those mountain peaks his honest feet have trod
So high above the rest of us he seemed to walk with God.
He's breathed the breath of heaven, as it floated, pure and free,
From the everlasting snow caps to the mighty western sea,
And he's heard that awful silence which thunders in the ear,
"There is a great Jehovah, and his biding place is here!"
These—these the solemn voices and these the sights that thrill
In the faraway Montana of Penn-Yan Bill.

Of course she had to love him, for it was her nature to,
And she'll wed him in the summer, if all we hear be true.
The blue grass will be waving in that cool Kentucky glade
Where the black eyed Susans cluster in the pleasant walnut shade
Where the doves make mournful music and the locust trills a song
To the brook that through the pasture scampers merrily along,
And speechless pride and rapture ineffable shall fill
The beatific bosom of Penn-Yan Bill.

Some Odd Weapons.

Some queer weapons with which a Georgia company, from Screven, was armed at the beginning of the rebellion have just been discovered. Governor Brown of Georgia ordered a lot of pikes for Georgia soldiers, and these give the idea for the weapons fashioned for the Screven company. They were made by a blacksmith. The weapon was practically a bowie knife, almost a foot long, set in a handle a little more than a foot in length. Attached to the handle was a piece of very strong elastic 5 or 10 feet long. The idea was that the weapon could be hurled at an opponent and would rebound into the hands of the owner. It could thus be used several times, and at long range. The blades were made from long files and were ground to a long, sharp point. How effective the odd weapons proved is not stated.—New York Sun.

Females In the Majority.

Secretary of State Kelsey of New Jersey and his extra clerks have just finished compiling the state census, taken last July. It shows some remarkable facts.

According to the figures, there are 1,672,942 persons in New Jersey, the females exceeding the males by 2,825. The population has increased 228,000 since 1890. There are 279,755 dwellings in the state, accommodating 357,373 families. The foreign population is 357,172, of which 93,435 are Irish, 118,823 Germans and 144,916 of other nations.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Court adjourned this afternoon until tomorrow morning.

The Elks will meet early this evening in order to give all an opportunity to attend the lecture. It is requested that there be a full turn out of the members of the lodge.

Margaret A. Dwyer was appointed administratrix of the estate of James Molloy, deceased, in the probate court today, and entered into a bond in the sum of $2500, which was approved.

The Howard Saxby lecture, under the auspices of the Kitcha Gamma club, will not begin until 8:15 in order that the clerks in the various stores about the city may hear the lecture from the first.

Samuel Coler, an employe of the Steam Shovel works, is off duty on account of an accident which befell him. A piece of steel struck his left wrist and injured it in such a manner that it will keep him away from work for several days.

George Hecker and John Reidenbaugh have formed a partnership and will sell the Standard Fuel Gas burner, which burns half oil and half water. The papers of the firm were drawn up today and the young men will go right to work.

The Knights and Ladies of Honor will hold a social session on Friday night It has been arranged to hold the regular session of the lodge, after which a banquet and social is to be given. The members and their guests were invited.

An old fraud in the shape of a female mendicant is in the city, and has been here for the past couple of weeks She tells a story of trying to get to friends in the West, but the most of her money is spent for drink She was working the west end of the city this forenoon.

No doubt many of our citizens will be in attendance at the concert to be given at the High Street theater, Columbus, Friday evening, Dec. 6 At that place and date Melba, the world's greatest songstress, and the Melba Operatic Concert company will show at Columbus.

About 9 o'clock this morning the jury in the case of Crowley & Scanlan against the City of Marion was dismissed and court adjourned until 1 o'clock, the attorneys in the case having come to an agreement. The terms of settlement can be found in another column of this issue in the report of council proceedings.

The new K. of P. hall at Prospect will be be dedicated this evening, and a large number from this place will be in attendance. The lodge there has several candidates, and the work will be performed by the Delaware, Marysville and Marion teams. Delaware will confer the first rank, Marion the second and Marysville the third. A banquet is also to be served.

Miss Mary Harding, teacher of the Kindergarten class, is arranging to have Mrs. Ladia Brown, superintendent of the Columbus Kindergarten schools, to deliver a lecture in this city some time in the near future, with the object of arousing local interest in kindergarten work, with the hope of establishing a school of that kind in the city The date of Mrs Brown's lecture will be announced later.

A delightful surprise was held at the home of Mr and Mrs. George Schade, on Mound street, in honor of Mrs. Schrade's thirty-second birthday. There were thirty guests present. The evening was spent in society games. Mrs Schade received many beautiful and valuable presents Refreshments were served at a late hour, after which the guests departed, wishing Mrs. Schade many more such happy events.

A singular accident occurred at the Germania Park hall Wednesday night, but fortunately no one was made seriously ill on account of the same. By mistake coal oil had been poured in several of the water glasses with the drinking water After a pleasant but tiresome dance the dancers hurried to the bucket for a drink, and before they were aware of it had swallowed a portion of the oil and water, and one or two took swigs of the pure petroleum

When the janitor came to open Germania Park hall Wednesday evening to build the fires and make arrangements for the dance he was naturally surprised to find that it had been broken into and robbed of whatever value it contained The worst of the matter was that about two tons of coal had been stolen. There was just enough coal scraped up to keep the fire going until the close of the ball. An entrance was gained to the hall through a window Besides the coal it cannot just be stated what all was taken, but a number of articles were missing.

Hit by a Board.

While ripping up a poplar board on the rip-saw in the mill of The Prendergast Lumber and Coal company, Wednesday, a piece of board was thrown off by the saw and struck Lew Wasser, who was operating the machine, in the bowels While the piece of timber did not pierce the person of Wasser, it struck him with such force as to disqualify him for work for the remainder of the day.

Youngstown Officials Make a Short Stop Here Today.

A Youngstown junketing party consisting of W. H. Moore, chief of the Youngstown fire department, Jerry Wooley, chairman of the fire committee of the city council, and J. W. Dickey, Veeder Heasley, H. B. Chase and F. G. McConnell, the board of city commissioners of Youngstown, were in the city this morning, looking at the new chemical engine and hose wagon.

The party was accompanied by Mr. Roberts who sold the chemical wagon to this city, and in his charge the party goes to Toledo to look at the department there.

The party seemed highly pleased with the new apparatus as well as with the general condition of the local department and the attachments used here for holding up the harness on the ladder truck and hose wagon were particularly admired.

One of the party told the STAR that the city of Youngstown had bonded itself for $21,000 to put up and equip three new fire department houses in the outskirts of Youngstown and that in our department they had picked up some points which they intended to utilize.

While the gentlemen were present the local department made a lightning hitchup which was a surprise to the visitors as they did not expect anything like the celerity shown.

Attention Comrades

All members of Cooper Post are reminded that at the regular meeting Monday evening, Nov. 25, nominations of candidates for the various offices of the post will be made to be elected at the first regular meeting in December, which will be Monday evening, December 9.

Come out, comrades, one and all, and have your say in the selection of post officers for the coming year. Remember you are all in good standing and have a vote if you have heard nothing officially from the post to the contrary. Don't forget the dates.

HERE'S A QUEER CASE

JOE COLLINS IS ARRESTED FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY

He Explains How He Comes To Be In a Compromising Position Near the Implement Manufacturing Company's Works. Other Police Court Matters.

For some time past there has been a number of depredations committed at the Marion Implement works, and an endeavor has been made to discover the miscreant who was doing the same Windows were broken, the hydrant was turned on, steam shut off and various little things that greatly inconvenienced the work at the shop Watchman Lattimore landed what he believed to be the miscreant Wednesday night.

It was about 9 o'clock when the watchman heard a window glass break He rushed out and seeing a man called on him to halt. Instead of halting the man started to run. The watchman gave chase and soon had him under arrest and took him to the city prison. It proved to be none other than Joseph Collins Collins is a sort of an innocent individual, residing in the city, and held stock in the Implement works until some time ago, when it was purchased from him. After that Manager Martin had him discharged as he did not have use for him in the works, and he believes that he is guilty of the many petty little things that have been done there for the past few weeks.

Collins admits throwing the stone He says that he was on his way home, when someone stepped out from the shop and commanded him to halt. He did not do it but picked up a stone and threw it at him, and then the watchman came out and also commanded him to halt, but he thought it was some highwayman and ran.

This afternoon Collins plead guilty and was bound over to court in the sum of $500

There was a queer mixture of citizens in the city prison over Wednesday night, including the tramps. In one of the cells of the prison department slept Daniel Wilson, who is employed on the Conklin estate north of the city Daniel came into town during Wednesday afternoon and partook of too much liquor. It made him crazy and coming along Center street shortly after 6 o'clock he playfully walked up to a stand of chestnuts in front of the Italian fruit stand and threw it over.

He next stopped at Frank Wayland's fish market and threw an armful of fish into the street and put a number in his pocket. Frank Wayland stepped out and catching him made him place a herring on the stand, and then marched him around the street until he came across Officer Hickman. He turned the man over to him, and he was locked up until this morning, when he came before Acting Mayor McKinley and plead guilty. He explained that he did not want fish, that Wednesday was not Friday and he had a good beefsteak at his home anyway; if he had not been drunk he would not have stolen the fish. He admitted that the cod fish taken from his pocket at the city prison had been stolen, but he had allowed the enemy to creep into his mouth and daze the gray matter in his cranium. The 'Squire had a little roast up his sleeve and he served it with a salad of five dollars and cost.

Daniel only had forty-five cents but agreed to pay it before December 20 and he was allowed to go

The valise stolen from the Erie and owned by E Gutmann, of Cincinnati, was found at the rear of F E White's premises The valise had been cut open, the clothes stolen and thrown into the chicken yard It contained a number of small boxes and an order book. It was turned over to the Erie.

There were just twenty-three tramps on the register when the doors of the Hotel Carlos opened this morning.

CUSHING'S NERVE.

WONDERFUL PLUCK AND SELF CONTROL OF THE TORPEDO HERO.

His Albemarle Expedition a Trying Campaign—It Cost the Enterprise Rested Upon Coolness Under Fire—An Awful Crisis Met Without Flinching.

[Copyrighted, 1895, by the American Press Association. Reproduction forbidden.]

NERVE is a word used in many senses. The physical courage and intrepidity displayed by Cushing in the destruction of the Confederate ram Albemarle with a torpedo, thrust by his own hand, as it were, against her sides, has been a theme for historian and poet. But that orderly element which insured success was strength of nerve, nothing less than marvelous—nerve in execution, nerve as firm and true as that required for the most delicate and prolonged operation in surgery. The operation against the Albemarle was not a mere exploit. It rose to the dignity of a campaign. The ram had baffled the Union fleet and neutralized an army. Had it been possible the government would have dispatched a squadron of ships of a corps d'armee to bring about her destruction. A boy 22 years of age planned and carried out, unaided by other minds, the entire work. And from beginning to end his course was beset with difficulties that would have warranted him in turning back, and most men would have been worried out in overcoming them.

His craft of two open launches was selected in New York and taken by stealth through the canals and bays to the field. In passing through the Chesapeake one launch was lost—the best one, too. After entering the Albemarle sound he found its channel filled up at one point and spent two days getting over the obstruction. The launch had to be unstepped and loaded upon a flatboat, all with the aid of only seven men. Upon reaching the Albemarle sound he found the enemy in the river, but had expected to find a fleet of ships of war. Instead there was only a single vessel, the ram, and she was moored to the bank under the guns of Fort Gray, a formidable work, mounting seven heavy guns, and garrisoned by a force of 1,500 men. Above and below the fort lay the ram's consorts, the tender vessels of the fleet, whose duty it was to protect the ram and the work in the river and watch the pickets. Luckily the night was dark, and the party passed within 100 yards of the picket without discovery. It was supposed, and with reason, that the enemy in the ram, Captain Cooke, might have used a calcium light, but Cooke had decided to meet the attack in the open river with all the men on board. His plan at that stage was to "take above" the vessel, boarding her, overpowering her crew with hand grenades, revolvers and cutlasses in the hands of his brave crew. The commander was a shrewd and thoughtful man, and had studied the ground and the Confederate positions. He had eight miles to make in the enemy's waters, and he knew that an old wreck one mile below the ram was occupied by Confederate river pickets. The town of Plymouth and the forts and camps on both banks of the river held a garrison of several thousand enemies. "Thus it seemed impossible to surprise them," he says in his narrative, "or to attack them with success. Impossibilities are for the timid. We determined to overcome all obstacles."

Before entering the river a cutter had been taken in tow, manned with 13 sailors of the fleet, whose duty it was to board the work in the river and remove

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Baltimoreans claim that John V. L. Findlay is the leading orator of Maryland.

Phil May, the clever English black and white artist, is known in everyday life as J. A. Sheppard.

Baron De Hirsch has sold his magnificent estate in Hungary to Frederick Charles von Hohenlohe, son of the German chancellor.

Barney Barnato, the South African millionaire, thinks he has dramatic ability and is about to write a play with Haddon Chambers for collaborator.

Lord Rosebery has commissioned Mr. Herkomer, R. A., to paint a replica of the portrait of Mr. Cecil Rhodes which figured prominently in the London academy this season.

Pillsbury, the champion chess player of the world, is an inveterate smoker. His favorite tobacco takes the form of green cigars, and during one game he will consume six or seven from his case.

Autograph collecting is Sol Smith Russell's fad. His weakness is a belief in superstitions fancies. He gives an odd turn to the latter, calling 13 his lucky number, and prefers to begin his annual tours on Friday.

J. Massey Rhind has been engaged by a party of prominent citizens to make a bust of President Cleveland for presentation to Atlanta. The negotiations were completed during Mr. Cleveland's recent visit to that city.

The golden wedding of ex-Governor Robert W. Furnas and wife was celebrated at their country home, in Brownville, Neb., Oct. 29. They were married in Cincinnati Oct. 29, 1845, and removed to Nebraska in 1856.

Senator Sherman has outlived all but one of the men who were his rivals in the convention of 1880. Of that great array—Grant, Blaine, Windom, Garfield, Elihu B. Washburne and Edmunds—the latter alone survives, and he is living in retirement.

John Burns, the English labor leader, responding to statements concerning his large money receipts during his recent lecturing tour in the United States, writes that he traveled 17,000 miles in seven weeks and that he visited 18 cities and spoke to 70,000 people for a little over $500.

The Rev. Robert C. Foute, rector of Grace Episcopal church, San Francisco, was a midshipman on board the Merrimac when that vessel was rammed by the Monitor. He served through the war, becoming a captain in the Confederate navy, but after the war closed he entered the church.

Mrs. Nansen, like most Norwegian ladies, whether they need it for a livelihood or not, works hard, her work consisting of giving lessons in music, an art in which she is highly accomplished. Before they married Dr. Nansen and his fiancee agreed that he should not abandon his adventurous explorations and that she should continue her teaching.

DENOMINATIONAL NAMES.

The Albigenses were named from the principal town in their district, a city called Albi.

The Jansenists were the followers of Jansenius, the bishop of Ypres, born in 1585; died in 1638.

The Muggletonians took their name from Muggleton, a self styled prophet of the seventeenth century.

The agnostic is so named because he claims that we can know nothing of the supernatural, of God or of a future state.

The polytheist took his name from two Greek words signifying many gods. The polytheist believed in the plurality of deities.

The Baptists had their name from John the Baptist, they claiming to perform the rite of baptism in the manner that he did.

Idolatry was thus termed from two Greek words signifying "the worship of images." Idolatry is not to be confounded with paganism.

The Congregationalists had their name from their doctrine that each congregation was a unit, should be independent of all others and manage its own affairs in its own way.

The rationalist called himself so because of his belief that reason was the supreme good and that nothing which lay outside the domain of reason was to be recognized as truth.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

They that govern most make the least noise.—Selden.

Uncertainty and expectation are joys of life.—Congreve.

As sight is in the eye, so is the mind in the soul.—Sophocles.

The greatest learning is to be seen in the greatest plainness.—Wilkins.

Covetous men are mean slaves and drudges to their substance.—Burton.

When thought is too weak to be simply expressed, it is clear proof that it should be rejected.—Vauvanargues.

I know no manner of speaking so offensive as that of giving praise and closing it with an exception.—Steele.

Some men so dislike the dust kicked up by the generation they belong to that, being unable to pass, they lag behind it.—Hare.

All brave men loved, for he only is brave who has affections to fight for, whether in the daily battle of life or in physical contests.—Hawthorne.

If a man can have only one kind of sense, let him have common sense. If he has that and uncommon sense, too, he is a dangerous genius.—Beecher.

THE FASHION PLATE.

The dahlia, mulberry and reddish plum shades in velvet and cloth are much used for elegant fur trimmed costumes.

Changeable velvets in exquisite color mixtures are employed by high class modistes and tailors in the making of Louis XVI theater and opera capes and coats.

Jacqueminot or poppy red velours in ribbed patterns, edged with cut jet gimp, are used for decorating the bodices of handsome black costumes for the winter.

Changeable effects in silks, satins, silk and wool mixtures, and in fancy velvets are still the very correct fashion, notwithstanding their long limit of favoritism.

Black crepons with brilliantly colored figures on the wavy background are used for elegant dinner and visiting gowns, and these, 40 inches wide, cost from $2 to $7 a yard.

Very handsome costumes are made of moss green corduroy trimmed on the coat front with rich iridescent passementeries and elsewhere decorated with narrow bands of dark mink fur.

Fancy belts of fine gold plate not more than two inches wide and fastened with handsome gold clasps are worn with some elegant dinner and reception dresses just brought from Paris.

Very bright colors appear upon the fronts of gowns worn even upon the promenade. Brilliant cherry, orange, yellow, green and other striking colors are used in velvet for stock collar and vest or plastron front.

The jacket with stitched bands simulating box plaits, belted in the back and having open fronts over a fancy vest, retains favor for youthful wearers, both here and abroad. This model has full sleeves and two cape collars edged with narrow fur.—New York Post.

STAGE GLINTS.

Lilla Linden has made a hit as the Mexican girl in the opera "Yetiva."

Henrietta Crosman has assumed the leading role in "Burma" at the Boston theater.

Augustin Daly has secured Victor Koning's dramatization of "L'Abbe Constantin" for Ada Rehan's use.

Courtenay Thorpe is to become a member of the Girard Avenue theater (Philadelphia) stock company.

Caroline Hamilton, the original Maid Marian in "Robin Hood," will soon sail for Europe, her intention being to study in Paris.

A number of theater managers will meet in Hartford shortly to form "an association for mutual protection against barnstormers."

Next season Willard Lee of the "Bonnie Scotland" company, will star in a play written by Herbert Hall Winslow and W. R. Wilson entitled "The Everglades."

Gilmore and Leonard, who are known as "Ireland's Kings," will leave vaudeville shortly and begin a starring tour in a new comedy, the title of which is "Hogan's Alley."

Louis Martinetti, now successfully appearing in "A Baggage Check," will probably originate the leading comedy part in Charles A. Blaney's new play, "A Boy Wanted."

John Oliver Hobbes (Mrs. Craigie) will arrive in New York in time to see the production of her play, "Journey's End In Lovers' Meeting," with Ellen Terry in the principal role.

TURF TOPICS.

Hal C, 2:25, is by Hal Dillard, 2:04¾.

Budd Doble will spend the winter in Europe.

Five of the new 2:10 performers are to be credited to Oregon.

Afrite won 14 races and was twice second out of 17 starts.

Sirock, 2:14½, has won every race he has started in this season.

Directum will make the coming season in the stud in Kentucky.

Driver Ed Geers has won 65 of the races in which he has driven this year.

Myron E. McHenry, the noted driver, has about decided, it is reported, to retire from the turf.

The gray gelding John R. Baldwin, 2.25¼, by the Long Island sire Fallis, recently trotted six winning races in 15 days.

A. E. Alvord of Syracuse has purchased the colt Hod P, a full brother to Mascot, 2:04. The colt is said to be very fast.

Before being retired for the season Earlmont, 2:09¾, showed a half in less than a minute. Strathberry secured 15 track records this season and was a drawing card at western fairs.

John R. Gentry's last race at Reidsville, N. C., with Joe Patchen gives him the championship among the pacing stallions by reason of his actual conquests.—Turf, Field and Farm.

NOVELTIES.

A galvanic coating of silver appears on articles of fine china for the toilet.

Bronzes attracting attention show a gray green finish known as the Roman.

Hairpins grow in elaborateness. A round ball is one of the favorite conceits in this line.

Chatelaine bags made of uncut velvet and mounted with silver, gilded and enamelled, are dainty and elegant in appearance.

Among attractions for the boudoir are dresden china atomizers on silver mounts and bearing the familiar miniatures on their bowls.

There is a demand for letter seals, which is supplied with gold and silver affairs that add decorative effect to milady's writing desk.—Jewelers' Circular.

YOUNG GASOLINE FIENDS.

Philadelphia Boys Discover an Intoxicant That Is New to Them.

Gasoline as an intoxicant has lately gained much favor among the juveniles of the southeastern section of the city, and the Twenty-fifth district policemen are having their own troubles trying to prevent the boys from securing their tipple or taking care of them after they have secured it.

Some time ago a crowd of urchins secured an old gasoline barrel, with which they intended making a fire. Previous to igniting it, however, one of the party hid from his companions by jumping inside of it. He rather enjoyed the odor of stale gasoline and inhaled the fumes for some time, until finally when he tried to get out of his hiding place he found his only escape was to roll out. He was almost completely overcome by the fumes and unable to walk straight. When he did recover, he told the others that the sensation was most delightful, and immediately empty gasoline barrels were at a premium.

The great discoverer of the new jag method was one James Dougherty, and soon he, with several others, became confirmed gasoline drunkards. Some days ago two of the boys found a barrel outside a corner grocery, and its removal unseen not being an easy matter they gined their noses to the bunghole and were soon wrapped in as pretty a hand painted, close fitting jag as any of their elders could wish for. While in this condition they were discovered by Policeman Goodchild and sent home, it being supposed that they were sick.

Through the past week other boys, mildly intoxicated, were noticed, but it was not until Friday last that the secret as to the method employed leaked out. Then George Goldthrop, aged 14 years, of 1420 Snyder avenue, was found near Second and Mifflin streets serenely unconscious behind a lumber pile and was sent to the police station. He recovered after several hours, and in the morning the story was learned. It seems that after exhausting the supply of barrels the boys hit on a novel scheme for obtaining their favorite intoxicant.

All through the First ward are numerous gasoline street lamps. The tanks on these were filled daily, and it was an easy matter for the boys to climb up the posts and get at the tank. They saturated old pieces of cloth with the fluid, and with these pressed tight over their noses and mouths inhaled the fumes until the desired stage of intoxication was reached. The police now have orders to watch the lamps and to arrest any one who tampers with them. The parents of the boys known to be addicted to the practice were called up by Lieutenant Harmer and lectured on the doings of their children. The surgeons of the district say that the inhalation of the fumes may cause dangerous results. —Philadelphia Record.

English Judges.

The London Saturday Review declares that inasmuch as judges will not retire when they are too old they ought to be compelled to do so. Beginning with the court of appeals, it points out that Lord Esher, the master of the rolls, is 80; Lord Justice Kay is 73; Lord Justice Lindley is 67, and Lord Justice Lopes is 68. Of the lords of appeal in ordinary, Lord Morris is 68; Lords Watson and Shand are 67. Coming to the high court of justice, Justice Hawkins is 78; Baron Pollock is 72; Justice Day is 69; Justice Chitty and Justice Wills are 67, and Justice North and Justice Mathew are 65. Sir Richard Couch and Lord Hobhouse of the judicial committee of the privy council are 78 and 67 respectively. "Old judges," it adds, "are like other old men, neither better nor worse —that is to say, they are peevish, capricious, callous of the interests and feelings of other men and shirkers of their work. They are not responsible for these defects, which are due to their physical condition, and they would not be human if they did not show them. Lord Esher's irritability in the court of appeal when he has a strange or stupid counsel before him is painful to witness."

Frattarolo Brothers Not Robbers.

The two well known brigands, the brothers Frattarolo, paid a visit a few days ago to the country house of a rich squire at Vico Garganico, near Foggia. The squire, who happened to be on the point of departure and whose horse was already saddled, was not overjoyed at the sight of the brigands, but dared not offend them. They, however, spoke to him very politely, begging him not to be afraid of them and saying they were the same as other men. After having lunched with the brigands and offered them cigars the squire handed them a note for 100 francs, which, however, they refused, contending that they were not robbers, but that they went about the country trying to avenge themselves on their enemies. When their host took his departure on horseback, the brothers offered to accompany him part of the way, which they did, mounted on their mules. The squire was not sorry, as may be imagined, to see the last of them.—London News.

Kipling and Dorothy Drew.

Kipling got a setback from Gladstone's little granddaughter, Dorothy Drew, the last time he was in England, so the story goes. He was visiting at her home, took a great fancy to her and endeavored to make a good impression upon her by telling tales. After some time her mother, fearing Mr. Kipling might be tired, called her and said, "Now, Dorothy, I hope you have been good and not wearying Mr. Kipling." "Oh, no mother, not a bit," replied the infant terrible; "but you've no idea how Mr. Kipping has been worrying me!"

REAL PIRATES.

They Exist In the Malay and Eastern Waters Especially.

As a matter of fact, there are plenty of pirates extant, although they are seldom so bold in any sea as to attack a vessel flying a European flag. The Malay and eastern waters swarm with seemingly commercial junks and proas, which wear all the air of respectability, but are none the less on a constant watch for becalmed traders and cargo ships undermanned. In the Formosa channel the outward and homeward bound passengers will see apparently innocent vessels leisurely drifting in pairs before the wind. They drag between them a huge cable, to which is fastened a sweepnet, and if nothing better turn up, they have to be content with what tunnies and turtle they may thus catch off the Pescadores or the Paracels, or in those waters, the home of the cyclone, where rises the lonely Piedra Blanca. If, however, a Tonkinese or Chinese rice or opium boat drifts by and no embarrassing European is near, the nets are drawn in, the swarthy fishermen get out their spears and muskets, and combine to board and ravage the unlucky trader, cutting the throats of all on board and sinking the junk when she has been thoroughly cleaned out.

Instances have been known in which Canton or Fuchau pirates have shipped as seemingly harmless and respectable voyagers on board even European steamships sailing out of Chinese ports, and have risen, when the vessel was well at sea, and massacred her captain and crew. In such a case one hears of it, for European blood is an expensive liquid to spill in the east, but no mention ever comes to public ears of the hundreds of craft sailed and owned by natives, which year by year, in the seas east of Singapore, fall victims to the treacherous pirate of the Malay peninsula, or Celebes or Javan archipelago.

A well manned merchant ship, with a maxim gun on board, would be fairly safe, for they can only attack in their boats, and any quick firing cannon of the modern type would be more than they could comfortably face. A steamer, too, as long as her engines keep going, is perfectly secure, for their best chance is in those dead calms which come upon the eastern seas when the trader is helplessly fixed, while the "water rats" can bring their dhow or proa close up with long sweeps and finish off the rest in their boats.—London Telegraph.

An Italian Festival.

Toward midday the crowd attains its largest proportions; then the suspension of the church services, hunger and fatigue help to lessen its number. Groups form under the trees and picnic; others surround the "friggitori" who are busy frying chickens, fish, sweetbreads, rice balls and many other compounds in the boiling oil of their great copper pans. In the wineshops there is much drinking going on, intermixed with laughing, jesting, fooling, quarreling, the townsfolk unmercifully jeering at the country people, some of whom laugh with and at their tormentors, while others preserve a sulky silence.

The Republicans begin to sing choruses which are professions of their political faith, to which the socialist group replies with gibes, also sung in chorus. The simple melody once united to the stornello, artless outpouring of lovers' joys and sorrows, sung at happy harvests and merry vintages and by the serene voices of peasant maidens at work in quiet fields, is degraded and wedded to rhymed doggerel, spiced with insult and blasphemy.

On the steep banks under the thick ilex shade many are asleep. The country women, with their smooth, closely braided heads lying on their white kerchiefs, rest like dreaming saints in the sleep of the just. In other patches of shade other women are lying with dishevelled hair and flushed faces. In all the vulgar boldness of holiday makers from the town they are sleeping off the double effects of the sun and wine.—Good Words.

Musical Sand.

Mr. Carus Wilson found that fine sand from Studland bay, which was sonorous on the beach, but mute when carried home in a box, gave out a shrill note when struck in a teacup. The glazed sides of the cup increased the intensity of vibration of the sand by increasing the number of polished surfaces in contact, and this was proved by putting the same sand in various vessels with rough interiors, and by lining the glazed and polished vessels with silk, when it became mute again. Sand of the Egg type, possessing the physical conditions necessary for the production of music in great perfection, are musical in receptacles of almost any kind or form. The smallest quantity of musical sand from which Mr. Wilson got a true note was a thimbleful of Egg sand. Less perfect musical sand, such as that of Studland bay, was found to be usually mute, except in situ or in vessels of hard, glazed interiors and of certain definite form. Some "sulky" sands not only needed vessels of hard, glazed interiors and of definite form, but also a box or small pedestal of wood—a "coaxer"—on which the vessel had to be placed before the notes became audible. A "sulky" sand could be rendered far more musical by being sifted, washed and boiled, giving out notes, after this treatment, without the aid of the "coaxer."—Temple Bar.

Not Lucky With Their Names.

There are in France two brothers with the surname of Assassin, who recently obtained the necessary permission from the high functionary called keeper of the seals to change their name to one less offensive. After mature reflection they decided to change their name to Berge. Now that it is too late to alter it they have discovered, to their intense annoyance, that their new name happens, by a singular coincidence, to be that of the chief assistant to M. Deibler, the public executioner, who will in all probability succeed to M. Deibler's awesome business.

IN DYING CONDITION

A YOUNG WIFE IS SENT AWAY FROM HER PARENTS' HOME.

Mrs. Frankie Eaton, of Prospect, Dies at Indianapolis While Enroute To Join Her Husband--She Tells a Pitiful Story of Ill Treatment.

The following story was telegraphed under date of Nov. 19, from Indianapolis, to the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"Among the passengers on a late train last night was Mrs. Frankie Eaton, of Prospect, Ohio, enroute to join her husband, George Eaton, of Cisne, Ill. The woman was seen to be suffering with lung trouble, and the matron gave her attention. She was removed to a couch in the ladies' waiting room, where she died shortly before 3 o'clock this morning.

"In a pitiable manner, before death, she told the depot attaches that she had been in failing health for several months, and some weeks ago she accepted an invitation to visit her parents at their home in Ohio. For reasons which she would not explain she reported that her parents became angry with her and removed her to a woodshed, where she suffered untold agony until yesterday, when they decided to return her to her husband.

"Meanwhile she had received a letter from her husband, saying that he had found work and would soon send for her. This letter she exhibited. Upon leaving Prospect, Ohio, she was provided with only sufficient money to bring her to this city. She gave her age as 22. Her husband is coming for the remains."

In answer to an inquiry at Prospect the information is received that the woman is the daughter of Eliza Reeger and came to Prospect along in the summer on a visit. At that time she was suffering from consumption. She left Prospect Monday morning, and it is supposed by those in Prospect that her parents compelled her to go home. As to her being removed to the woodshed the STAR'S informant states that the girl's story may be true.

The STAR saw a C., H. V. and T. brakeman who was on the train that carried the woman away from Prospect, and says that they brought her to the depot, placed her on the train and left her. The brakeman noticed that she was suffering, but did not think much of it at the time.

It ends Saturday night. The special sale of winter underwear at Warner & Edwards.' No underwear will be sold at the cut prices after Saturday night. 312-t2

The 8-year-old son of C. Winfield is quite sick at the home of his parents, on Silver street. While returning from school Monday the boy was pushed down by a companion and struck the pavement. His sickness is the result of the fall.

Funeral of Robert Reed.

The remains of Robert M. Reed were taken from this city to Upper Sandusky Wednesday and services, conducted by Rev. J. L. Hillman, of this city, and Rev. D. Bower, of Upper Sandusky, were held in the Methodist church, following which interment occurred at the Old Mission. In noting his death the Upper Sandusky Union says:

"Robert M. Reed, who removed from this city to Marion about four years ago, died at the latter place, Monday evening, at an advanced age, of cancer of the face. Up to the time he left this place he had been a resident since before the war. He leaves a second wife and six children—five girls and one boy, all married, as follows: Mrs. Mary Ensminger, Danville, Ind: Mrs. Florence French, Marion: Mrs. Martha Baker, Caledonia: Mrs. Emma Sturgis, Los Angeles, Cal.: Mrs. Elsie Keleher, Danville, Ind., and Albert A. Reed, Marion."

Underwear and gloves are our specialties. Martin & Wiley.

Don't fail to see the beautiful chrysanthemums exhibited by Mr. F. E. Blake at the Presbyterian church, Friday, Nov. 22. In the evening a fine musical program will be given by the Grand Marion orchestra. Refreshments will be served. Admission, afternoon 10c; evening 15c. 312-t2

MERKLE-LUTZ.

A Pretty North State Street Wedding, Wednesday Night.

A very pretty home wedding occurred Wednesday night at the residence of Mrs. John B. Lutz, of north State street, the charming bride being Miss Lotta, the youngest daughter of the hostess, and the groom being Mr. Carl Merkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Merkle, of north Main street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Thomas, of the First Presbyterian church, in the presence of the respective families of the bride and groom and a number of intimate friends.

After the ceremony delightful refreshments were served and a merry time had by all.

The bride and groom are most clever young people of our city and their many friends wish them a long wedded life of unalloyed happiness.

Underwear and gloves are our specialities. Martin & Wiley.

THE FIRST DANCE

At Germania Park Hall Given by the Hilarity Club Wednesday Evening.

The first of the dances given at Germania Park hall by the Hilarity club was that of Wednesday night, and a more enjoyable one has not been given in the history of the club.

The hall is now under the management of Ed Masterson, and he has had the floor put in shape and everything made comfortable for his patrons. The orchestra is a good one, and Germania Park hall promises to be a resort that will be much patronized. No intoxicating liquors are sold.

The Hilarity club has about seventy-five members, and it was long after midnight before the dance of Wednesday night broke up and the dancers left for their homes.

1st Big Cut IN DRESS GOODS

Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

IT'S early in the season to commence cutting prices, but we have decided to begin at once. Our enthusiasm led us into the error of buying too many Dress Goods, and in consequence we must make a great sacrifice to sell them. We never wait until the season is past to rectify a mistake but will make our cut while you are in a position to buy.

On the right as you enter our store is piled on the counter ten pieces of Black Brocaded Dress Goods, the most popular designs sold during the season. They were 65c, 75c and 85c per yard. Our reduced price for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be 39c and 49c. We mean to sell them as this price must indicate.

At the same counter will be shown some Heavy Suitings in the latest and most popular mixtures. Just as handsome and just as durable as the fine French suiting. Our price has been $1.00 per yard. We shall close them out at 59c.

One piece, or 50 yards French Serge in black, 50 inches wide, that we sell at 75c, will be 50c during the sale.

Four very fine Brocaded Silk and Wool Crepon Pattern Suits in evening shades. They were so handsome that we could not resist the temptation to buy them, although they were very expensive for evening wear. We bought them to sell at $25.00, but the first customer here on Thursday morning may carry one pattern away for $10.00.

One piece of Navy Blue, Wide Diagonal Storm Serge, 54 inches wide and in the $1.25 quality, will be sold at 85c.

One piece of fine French all-wool Black Crepon, just the thing for extra skirts. It was bought to sell at $1.00. Our price will be 50c.

The Pattern Suits we are selling at $3.75 are acknowledged to be superior in style and quality to anything shown elsewhere at $5.00.

A wide range of all-wool goods reduced to 25c per yard.
We are showing fine Wool Astrakhans for trimmings and for making new sleeves in old style wraps.
30-Inch wide Plushes and Veleurs for making capes, fine fur and jets to trim them.

Everything advertised is a genuine bargain and cannot be bought at these prices except on Thursday, Friday or Saturday.
